I am pleased that Chairman Cox has placed some emphasis on this. He noted in a recent speech that it is vitally important that we partner with them, and the complementary nature of our regulatory regimes makes us far stronger together. There are a number of other items on the Commissions agenda, which I am sure we will review in the course of the question period here this morning. I do want to commend the good work environment now prevailing at the SEC. It was recognized in September 2005 as one of five best places to work in the Federal Government, a study by the Partnership for Public Service and U. S. News and World Report. That effort began when Chairman Cox assumed his responsibility, and a lot of it actually came from this Committee, as we tried to get resources for the Commission, pay parity for its employees, to stem the outflow of seasoned personnel, but I know...
